Tester: Amanda G, Recorder: Josh
User is not very accustomed to Android operations; she is an iOS user.

User surprised that initial screen was blank.
>   - User suggested either a home page or just show the WikiDroid logo.

User tried to search for "Dancing With the Stars" but could not find how to actually do the search.

User then searched for "Donald Duck" and found the search button.

User found the share feature for the article, but did not want to share the article.

User mentioned that she could not figure out how to change languages.

User started using Wikipedia's mobile webpage versions of functions because she opened their version of the side drawer.

User expressed frustration at not being able to figure out how to open more tabs.

User found the different button and successfully opened more tabs.

User found the menu button to look in a different language.

User commented that switching languages was simple after actually finding the button.

User mentioned that she wished the new tab functionality was also an option in the menu.

User commented that the tab drawer is confusing due to the icon for the drawer being the same as Wikipedia's mobile site icon to open their specific options.

User discovered that the settings option in the menu does nothing and was irritated.

User mentioned that on opening new tabs, it would be nice to automatically open up the text field for searching.

User said that the bookmark feature of the tab drawer was a very nice addition.

User stated she feels if she knew more about Android, she would find it relatively straightforward to use.

Tester: Yifan, Recorder: Kaiwen

User was confused about what he is supposed to in the main screen, it took him a while to figure out how to open up a new wiki page.

User had no problem figuring out how to switch between tabs, and adding tab seems straight forward to him.

User is confused about what the "Star" button in drawer is supposed to do.

User did not figure out how to switch between languages at first attempt, but found it inside the menu after few tries.

User is confused about the meaning of list items with / without "Folder" icon in the "List of Articles Saved"

Tester: Parth, Recorder Kriti

User is new to android and was confused with the main screen operation.

User is easily able to switch between tabs and had no problems opening them.

User was able to switch between languages without facing much difficulties.

User was initially confused about the bookmark feature but after learning what it does, he found it really useful.

User could not initially figure out the "switch language" feature but was able to understand after being acclimatized with android and the app.

User was not able to figure out the "Zoom" feature

Tester: Rhea, Recorder Kriti

User in an ios user and has very little experience with android. The user was easily able to open the main page.

User was easily able to switch between the articles and tabs.

User was successfully able to search for articles.

User had no trouble sharing the items.

User was little confused with the language switching function however, she later figured out how to switch between the languages.

Tester: Bianca, Recorder: Felipe

User is an ios and android user, so it has experience with mobile systems.

After opening the app, started to do a search.

The user searched for "Database" with success.

The user shared the article via e-mail without any problem.

The user clicked on the wikipedia logo, and saw the tabs open.

THe user clicked on the star with the intention to save as a favorite article.

The user clicked on the button to open a new tab, but she becomes frustrated because she was expecting something like more options, not to add a new tab.

The user search for "Bianca" on the wikipedia webpage search field.

The user found the menu button to show the extra functions.

The user clicked on the Language button to change the language, then choose Portuguese and clicked in "Ok".

The user clicked on "Save Article" to save the article.

After those steps, the user close the app. She does not become interested in to see the article saved.

The user said, as a wikipedia user, the told the app is intuitive.

Tester Shruti, Recorder Kriti

User is an ios user and has no experience with the android platform

User had trouble with opening up the new page for the app.

User was little confused in the new tab feature and said that it should be made simpler.

User had no problem with sharing the articles.

User was successfully able to implement search.

User had no problem in switching between the languages for the article and found it simple.

User had saved the article however didn't check back if the article was saved or not.